THE QUALITY AND STANDARDS OF THE CARE

On the basis of the evidence collected on this inspection:

The quality and standards of the care are good. The registered person meets the National Standards for under 8s day care and childminding.

WHAT SORT OF SETTING IS IT?

The childminder was registered in 1995. She lives with her husband and two adult children. Schools, nurseries, parks and shops are within walking distance of her home.

The ground floor of the home is used for childminding activities. There is a fully enclosed garden for outdoor play.

The childminder is registered to care for 6 children at any one time. She is currently caring for 2 children under 8 years. Both children attend on a part time basis.

The childminder is a member of the National Childminding Association. She attends local toddler groups on a regular basis.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE PROVISION

Helping children to be healthy

The provision is good.

The childminder follows clear, efficient hygiene routines to protect and promote children's health. Good standards of cleanliness are maintained in childminding areas to ensure children are cared for in a warm, clean home. Toys and equipment are clean and well maintained. This helps to prevent the spread of infection, which protects children's health.

Children are beginning to understand simple good health and hygiene practices. They are beginning to understand they must wash their hands after using the toilet and are learning the importance of good hygiene routines as they become increasingly independent in their personal care.

Children benefit from being offered varied, nutritional food at mealtimes. The childminder works closely with parents to provide food and drinks which appeal to children and meet their dietary needs. They enjoy fresh fruit and vegetables and are encouraged to try different foods to promote their healthy growth and development.

Each day there are outdoor activities provided to improve children's physical skills. They especially enjoy regular visits to soft play sessions. They develop control of their bodies as they use outdoor equipment in the garden and in the local park. Children rest and sleep according to their needs.

Protecting children from harm or neglect and helping them stay safe

The provision is good.

A well organised, safe environment ensures children have room to move around freely and safely. Premises are made warm, welcoming and friendly to children and parents.

The childminder carries out her own informal risk assessments and has identified all hazards in her home. She helps children to gain an awareness of safety, both indoors and outdoors, by talking and explaining to them and by being a positive role model. She has a good awareness of children's constantly developing abilities and takes appropriate safety measures to ensure children are safe at all times, such as preventing access to the fire and to harmful substances.

Furniture, equipment and toys which are of good quality and in a safe, well maintained condition are provided to promote children's development and welfare. The children are able to easily access appropriate toys, which encourages them to make choices and develop their independence.

Children are well protected. The childminder has a good understanding of her responsibilities with regards to child protection. All required procedures and documentation are in place.

Helping children achieve well and enjoy what they do

The provision is good.

Children are settled and happy in the childminder's care. Routines and care have been established that are consistent with home. This promotes children's sense of security and increases their confidence. Warm relationships have obviously been developed and the children approach the childminder confidently and with affection. The childminder helps to raise children's self esteem by providing encouragement and praise and by valuing what they have to offer.

Children enjoy using a wide range of resources such as puzzles, games, creative materials and books, which are suitable for their age and stage of development. They make decisions about their play and learning, appropriately supported by the childminder. Activities and play opportunities are purposeful and developmentally appropriate resulting in children being motivated and interested. Children especially enjoy the opportunity to play outdoors with the wide range of interesting equipment.

Helping children make a positive contribution

The provision is good.

The childminder actively promotes equality of opportunity and anti-discriminatory practice resulting in all children feeling valued and free from discrimination. Children learn to value differences through sensitive discussions and are receptive to the childminder's good role modelling.

Children behave well due to consistent, positive behaviour management by the childminder. The younger children play well alongside each other and are gaining an understanding of sharing and taking turns. They are beginning to distinguish between right and wrong. Older children negotiate and take responsibility for their own behaviour. They learn to work harmoniously together and develop respect for each other.

Trusting partnerships have been established with parents to help promote children's well being, development and progress. Information is shared on a daily basis. Parent's knowledge of their child's needs and interests is actively sought prior to a placement commencing and on a regular basis throughout their time in the childminder's care.

Organisation

The organisation is good.

The childminder has much experience of caring for a wide age range of children. She accesses a wide range of training and development opportunities, which contribute to her ability to plan enjoyable experiences for children, enhancing their learning and development.

Children feel at home and relaxed in the well organised environment resulting in them being confident to initiate and extend their own play and learning. The required ratios are maintained resulting in children receiving appropriate support and their needs being met effectively.

Records, policies and procedures are all in place and most are kept appropriately. All records are shared regularly with parents to keep them well informed about the service and the activities provided for their children. This contributes to continuity in the children's care. Overall the provision meets the needs of the children cared for.
