THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE PROVISION

Helping children to be healthy

The provision is good.

Children enjoy a wide range of activities that contribute to their good health. They take part in regular outdoor activities in the attractive garden, including ball games, use of bikes and scooters and other large and small equipment, all encouraging their physical development. Children are able to rest and be active according to their individual needs.

Children's health is supported by the encouragement of appropriate personal care routines which also allows them to develop their independence. They are cared for in a warm clean home which contributes to their good health and sense of security. Effective procedures followed by the childminder results in children being protected from illness and the spread of infection.

Children benefit from being offered varied, nutritional food at mealtimes. The childminder works closely with parents to provide food and drinks which appeal to children and meet their dietary needs. They enjoy fresh fruit and vegetables and are encouraged to try different foods to promote their healthy growth and development.

Protecting children from harm or neglect and helping them stay safe

The provision is good.

Children are cared for in a spacious environment where most risks are identified and minimised. This means children are able to move around safely, freely and independently. The childminder has sound systems in place to ensure children's safety inside and outside the home. However, there are aerosol air fresheners within children's reach in the toilet that pose a hazard to them.

Equipment is stored well at child level which allows even the youngest to make choices for themselves and direct their own play. Toys are available for all ages, and in sufficient quantities to ensure children enjoy a wide range of activities to promote all areas of development.

Children are well protected. The childminder has good understanding of her responsibilities with regards to child protection. All required procedures and documentation are in place to ensure children's welfare is safeguarded and promoted.

Helping children achieve well and enjoy what they do

The provision is outstanding.

The children enjoy their time with the childminder, she plans an excellent range of interesting activities which take into account children's individual interests. The childminder works jointly with the local school to ensure the children's learning is carried on throughout the childminding day. Children are interested, motivated and their all round development is promoted through the interest the childminder shows in what they do and say.

The children are independent as a result of the consistent support, praise and encouragement given to them. Close and caring relationships between the childminder and the children contribute to children's sense of belonging. Communication skills are well supported through quality adult-child interactions and questions are used very well to challenge the children's thoughts and extend their learning. This results in children being confident communicators who take turns in conversation well.

Helping children make a positive contribution

The provision is outstanding.

The childminder actively promotes equality of opportunity and anti-discriminatory practice resulting in all children feeling valued and free from discrimination. They access a varied range of activities and resources which increases their awareness of diversity. There are excellent procedures in place to support children with special needs.

Children behave very well. The childminder helps them to negotiate and take responsibility for their own behaviour by supporting them, being a positive role model, and encouraging the children to help each other. They learn to work harmoniously together and develop respect for each other. The children learn to be increasingly independent as a result of the consistent, high level of support, praise and encouragement given to them. Excellent relationships between the childminder and the children contribute to children's sense of belonging.

Children benefit from the positive partnership the childminder has developed with their parents. Parent's views about their children's needs are actively sought before the child starts and on a regular basis. Parents are kept verbally informed about their child's day and activities. This enables the childminder to meet each child's individual needs.

Organisation

The organisation is outstanding.

The children feel at home and at ease with the well-organised environment. This means they are confident and can initiate their own learning. Indoor and outdoor space is laid out to maximise play opportunities for children. The childminder organises her time effectively to meet the needs of the children.

The childminder has completed an excellent range of relevant training courses, including an appropriate first aid certificate. This has increased her knowledge and skills and allowed her to develop her practice.

Records, policies and procedures support excellent practice, safeguarding children's welfare and ensuring parents are very well informed of their children's progress. The provision effectively meets the needs of the children who attend. |

There was a recommendation agreed at the last inspection regarding the provision of resources reflecting positive images of culture, ethnicity, gender and disability.
