Type of setting Childcare on non-domestic premises

Introduction

This inspection was carried out by Ofsted under Sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of the registered early years provision. 'Early years provision' refers to provision regulated by Ofsted for children from birth to 31 August following their fifth birthday (the early years age group). The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and welfare, known as the Early Years Foundation Stage.

The report includes information on any complaints about the childcare provision which Ofsted has received since the last inspection or registration whichever is the later, which require Ofsted or the provider to take action in Annex C.

The provider must provide a copy of this report to all parents with children at the setting where reasonably practicable. The provider must provide a copy of the report to any other person who asks for one, but may charge a fee for this service (The Childcare (Inspection) Regulations 2008 regulations 9 and 10).

Children only attend this setting before and/or after the school day and/or during the school holidays. The judgements in this report reflect the quality of early years provision offered to children during those periods.

The setting also makes provision for children older than the early years age group which is registered on the voluntary and/or compulsory part(s) of the Childcare Register. This report does not include an evaluation of that provision, but a comment about compliance with the requirements of the Childcare Register is included in Annex B.

Description of the setting

Carnarvon Kids Club opened in March 2005. It operates from Carnarvon Primary School in Bingham, Nottinghamshire. Children have access to a classroom, the school hall and an enclosed outdoor play area. The club is equipped to support children learning difficulties and/or disabilities and is accessible to children or carers with disabilities. The club is listed on the Early Years Register and on the compulsory and voluntary parts of the Childcare Register. It opens from 07.30 to 08.50 and from 15.30 to 18.00 during term times and from 08.00 to 18.00 during school holidays. A maximum of 32 children may attend at any one time. There are currently 64 children aged from four to 11 years on roll. The club employs seven staff. Four of the staff, including the managers hold appropriate early years qualifications and one member of staff is working towards a qualification.

Overall effectiveness of the early years provision

Carnarvon Kids club provides good before- and after-school care for children in the EYFS and beyond. It is a lively and enjoyable place, where children learn and play happily together. The club runs smoothly because it is led effectively and teamwork amongst staff is good. The club promotes good progress in children's personal development and satisfactory progress in aspects of their learning. Relationships between children and staff are positive and staff provide a good balance of learning and leisure activities. The setting meets current welfare requirements and staff ensure that children are safe and well cared for. Managers are conscientious in overseeing the work of the club and recently introduced procedures for evaluating the success of current provision put it in a sound position to improve further in the future.

What steps need to be taken to improve provision further?

To further improve the early years provision the registered person should:

- introduce arrangements for assessing children's learning and development needs and for using assessment information as a basis for the planning of activities
- strengthen self-evaluation procedures in order to secure continuous improvement in the future
- improve facilities for learning and play by increasing children's access to computers and other information and communication technology

The leadership and management of the early years provision

The setting is led and managed effectively. The club's managers have drawn up effective policies to ensure children's welfare, which they review regularly. Training in such matters is up to date for all staff. Managers have responded positively to the findings of the last inspection and the actions that they have taken have improved aspects of children's safety and well-being when the club is in session. Children work and play in a safe environment because staff carry out safety checks daily, before the session begins.

Managers have also introduced arrangements for staff to evaluate the effectiveness of current provision. These arrangements give the club a sound capacity for further improvement but there remains scope for such procedures to be strengthened and embedded further in management routines. The setting enjoys good relationships with parents and works effectively in partnership with them.

The quality and standards of the early years provision

Carnarvon Kids club makes a positive contribution to children's personal development and staff plan a good range of activities that complement all areas of learning satisfactorily. As a result, children thoroughly enjoy their time there and there is variety and renewed interest that motivates children to join in fully. Children are free to choose activities such as construction, making jigsaws, writing, drawing or playing games. However, they currently have very limited access to computers or other information and communication technology and this reduces the scope of children's learning and leisure activities. Staff strike a good balance between allowing the children to follow their own interests and intervening to guide them in a way that ensures that children are purposefully engaged throughout the session. Staff observe children at work and play and report points of interest to parents. However, there are currently no formal arrangements for assessing children's attainments or for planning activities that systematically build on children's prior learning.

Children's well-being is of great importance to all staff and they are conscientious in putting the club's welfare policies into practice. There are thorough checks on all facilities and resources at the start of every session. Records show that fire drills are regular and children spoken to knew what to do 'if the whistle blows'. Occasional accidents are dealt with properly, because staff have appropriate qualifications in first aid for young children. There are thorough records that enable staff to inform parents of all accidents or of other incidents that could be of concern to them. Staff are thoroughly conversant with the club's child protection policy and are trained or briefed on its implementation. There are thorough systems to ensure that places in the setting are pre-booked and this enables managers to secure appropriate adult to child ratios at all times. Similarly robust systems ensure that only parents or known carers collect children.

Children's personal development is good because staff care conscientiously for their needs. Staff have high expectations of children's behaviour. Most children respond well, because relationships between children and staff are good and staff deal firmly, but pleasantly, with occasional minor incidents that occur. Staff place a high priority on developing children's independence and strategies, such as expecting children to make choices or to prepare their own snacks, work well in this regard. The club promotes healthy lifestyles satisfactorily. Snacks are healthy and children report that 'there is always some fruit'. When conditions allow, there is also provision for outdoor play, though facilities for this are limited during the winter. The session observed did not include physical activities for all children. A strength of the setting is the way that it brings together children of different ages and, in doing so, promotes friendships across the ages and a high level of mutual care and support. Parents state that this 'works wonders for children's self-confidence and social development.'
