Introduction

This inspection was carried out by Ofsted under Sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of the registered early years provision. 'Early years provision' refers to provision regulated by Ofsted for children from birth to 31 August following their fifth birthday (the early years age group). The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and welfare, known as the Early Years Foundation Stage.

The provider must provide a copy of this report to all parents with children at the setting where reasonably practicable. The provider must provide a copy of the report to any other person who asks for one, but may charge a fee for this service (The Childcare (Inspection) Regulations 2008 regulations 9 and 10).

The setting also makes provision for children older than the early years age group which is registered on the voluntary and/or compulsory part(s) of the Childcare Register. This report does not include an evaluation of that provision, but a comment about compliance with the requirements of the Childcare Register is included in Annex B.

Please see our website for more information about each childcare provider. We publish inspection reports, conditions of registration and details of complaints we receive where we or the provider take action to meet the requirements of registration.

Description of the childminding

The childminder was registered in 2006. She lives with her husband and three children aged six, 10 and 11 years in the West Midlands, close to shops, schools and parks. Areas of the house used for childminding are the ground floor kitchen, playroom and utility room and toilet and two bedrooms on the first floor. There is a fully enclosed garden for outside play. Access to the property is on ground floor level. The childminder takes and collects children from local schools. The family has a cat.

The childminder is registered to care for a maximum of five children of whom no more than three may be in the early years age range. She is currently caring for two children in this age group one on a full-time basis and one during school term-times only. The childminder is registered by Ofsted on the Early Years Register and on the compulsory and voluntary parts of the Childcare Register.

The childminder attends pre-school groups and is a member of a local Childminding Network.

The overall effectiveness of the early years provision

Overall the quality of the provision is outstanding.

The childminder has detailed knowledge of the children's home circumstances, interests and abilities which ensures their individuality is well recognised and respected. Good partnerships with parents and detailed secure knowledge of the Early Years Foundation Stage ensure that children make outstanding progress in their learning. The childminder continually identifies aspects of her service that she would like to extend and develop. She monitors her service, evaluates by comparing and sharing ideas with other childminders and attends training. Policies and procedures are well implemented to ensure significant continuity of care and learning and the substantial capacity to maintain continuous improvement.

What steps need to be taken to improve provision further?

To further improve the high quality early years provision the registered person should consider:

- review and extend the partnership with parents to provide information for parents to extend children's learning at home.

The effectiveness of leadership and management of the early years provision

The childminder has a strong understanding of her responsibilities regarding child protection issues and how to report her concerns. She has developed strong effective partnerships with parents to share information to safeguard children. The childminder regularly attends various training courses to extend and enhance her knowledge and understanding of the Early Years Foundation Stage and has attained a Level 3 early years qualification. This means that children's learning and care are exceptionally well promoted. She is vigilant about safety issues, which means that children are safe and secure both inside and outside the home. The childminder conducts visual daily safety checks and the detailed risk assessments are regularly reviewed and clearly recorded.

The childminder is very experienced in offering an inclusive service for children and their families. She is successful in making sure all children make significant progress and enjoy individual support to enhance their learning experience. Although the children in her care do not attend any other Early Years Foundation Stage settings, the childminder works cohesively to form strong effective partnerships with schools. The children's next steps in their learning are discussed with parents in order to promote continuity and progression. Parents are provided with daily information on their children and they have open access to the children's 'EYFS Profile' folders. The childminder is developing methods to ensure that parents are fully aware of the details on their children's activities so they can further support and extend their learning at home. Parents complete questionnaires on the service in which they state they are 'very happy' with the service.

The childminder is forward thinking in her determination to maintain and improve her very good quality childminding service and has recently attended various short courses including workshops on the Early Years Foundation Stage, safeguarding children and first aid. Her self-evaluation form states her strengths and weaknesses which enable her to focus on the most significant areas for improvement in order to provide consistently outstanding outcomes for children. The childminder provides the children with an extensive range of challenging, exciting experiences which are built-in to daily routines. She has an impressive range of good quality resources and ensures the environment is stimulating, warm and welcoming.

The quality and standards of the early years provision and outcomes for children

Children are happy and content and enjoy their time they spend with each other and the childminder. Their confidence grows as they are provided with stimulating experiences and individual support which helps them develop a positive sense of themselves. Children walk in the local community and visit pre-school groups to socialise and learn to respect diversity. They have unique opportunities to join with groups of children who have special educational needs to visit places of local interests such as an aircraft museum.

Their language skills are developing rapidly as the childminder interacts and joins in with their play and asks them enquiring understandable questions. The varied range of good resources and books are freely available which are chosen to read as part of free-play. Children enjoy sitting with the childminder and excitedly pointing to pictures in a favourite book, which is currently 'Thomas and Henry'.

They make excellent progress and celebrate their achievements with mutual praise and applause. The childminder skilfully ensures daily routines are fully utilised to extend the children's learning experiences such as asking them help tidy toys away and to help each other.

Resources are stored at low-level for self-selection and the children use them imaginatively as part of their play. For example, the children use play figures and a doll's house to put the babies to bed and feed the dog. Children understand the importance of keeping safe and respect the inside safety rules such as not running inside and being strapped into chairs whilst sitting at the table for their snack food.

They enjoy outings, frequent walks and visits to the park to develop their sense of well-being and physical skills. Personal hygiene is actively promoted by the childminder as she ensures the children progress to independence with personal needs. Children are prompted to understand how and why they need to wash their hands before food. Their developing understanding is extended by linking a healthy lifestyle to eating a balanced diet and cooking activities.

Children are creative and readily paint and make their own models. They plan and excitedly take part in their role play. For example, cooking sausages for the childminder on the barbeque in the playhouse and donning a pair of goggles to use the slide. They enjoy art projects using paper, card, paint and clay and photographs record children's activities over time.

Children's enthusiasm and self-esteem grow as they are praised and thanked for kind, helpful behaviour and achievements. They are rewarded with smiles, hugs and an occasional congratulatory sticker. Children are taught to share and take turns and remember to say please, thank you and sorry. They are learning skills for the future as they practise early numeracy, communication and literacy skills in free play and enjoying their books.

Children are fully assessed from the time they are placed with the childminder to ascertain their starting points. This is done by discussion with parents and the child when appropriate. Progress is expertly monitored by observations which are used to inform the next steps, individual planning and areas where further support is required. Children have frequent opportunities to extend their understanding of the society in which they live through visits, discussion, stories and increasing their awareness of culture and minority groups.
