The purpose of this inspection is to assure government, parents and the public of the quality of childcare and, if applicable, of nursery education. The inspection was carried out under Part XA Children Act 1989 as introduced by the Care Standards Act 2000 and, where nursery education is provided, under Schedule 26 of the School Standards and Framework Act 1998.

This report details the main strengths and any areas for improvement identified during the inspection. The judgements included in the report are made in relation to the outcomes for children set out in the Children Act 2004; the National Standards for under 8s day care and childminding; and, where nursery education is provided, the Curriculum guidance for the foundation stage.

The report includes information on any complaints about the childcare provision which Ofsted has received since the last inspection or registration or 1 April 2004 whichever is the later.

THE QUALITY AND STANDARDS OF THE CARE

On the basis of the evidence collected on this inspection:

The quality and standards of the care are good. The registered person meets the National Standards for under 8s day care and childminding.

WHAT SORT OF SETTING IS IT?

The childminder has been registered since June 2005. She lives with her husband and two children aged 2 and 3 years. They live in a semi detached house in County Durham. Public transport systems and local amenities are within walking distance. The whole of the ground floor areas are used for childminding, access to the first floor is restricted to use of the bathroom and child's bedroom. There is a fully enclosed rear garden available for outdoor play. The family have two pet goldfish.

The childminder is registered to care for a maximum of four children under the age of 8 years, she is currently caring for two children, both attend on a part time basis. The childminder receives support and training opportunities from the local authority.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE PROVISION

Helping children to be healthy

The provision is good.

Children enjoy a wide range of activities which contribute to their good health. Each day there are outdoor or indoor activities which help them develop increasing control of their bodies for example, as they ride bikes, join in with music and dance sessions. Garden games planting flowers and visits to local parks and soft play improve children's physical skills.

Children are well cared for in a warm and welcoming home, where they learn the importance of good hygiene and personal care throughout their daily routine. The consistent adult support and guidance helps children gain a good understanding of hygiene and a desire to become increasingly independent in their personal care, for example, they willingly help clean the table before eating, enjoy washing toys to keep them clean and independently visit the toilet. Their clear understanding of why they must wash their hands before eating and after using the toilet reduces the risk of cross contamination.

Children are beginning to have a good understanding of the benefits of a healthy diet. They are able to make choices from a variety of healthy foods, for example, a selection of five different fruits at snack time, and help themselves to easily accessible drinks throughout the day. Children are involved in making healthy choices by helping to prepare snacks and sandwiches. In depth discussions with parents and comprehensive records, ensure that children are provided with a healthy nutritious diet, which takes account of their individual dietary needs and parental wishes.

Protecting children from harm or neglect and helping them stay safe

The provision is good.

Children are well cared for in a safe home where the risks are identified and minimised. This enables them to move around safely, freely and independently. The childminder gives high priority to helping children understand how to keep themselves safe both in and out of the home. She effectively achieves a good balance between freedom and setting safe limits. This allows children to learn a sense of danger and knowledge about how to protect themselves from harm for example, as they cross roads, ride their bikes and tidy away toys so as not to fall over them.

Children independently select activities from a wide range of good quality toys and equipment which meet safety standards. The childminder has a clear understanding of child protection issues to ensure children's welfare is safeguarded and promoted, however, she lacks clarity of whom to contact if a child protection issue arises.

Helping children achieve well and enjoy what they do

The provision is good.

Children settle well at the childminders home. They are confident and happy. They achieve well because the childminder has a clear understanding of their developmental stages. Children access a wide range of activities and experiences, that promote and enhance individual development and learning skills.

They relate very well to each other and socialise with other children through visits to local amenities. All children spend their time purposefully. They enjoy a wide variety of experiences which contribute to their imaginative, physical, creative and language skills, such as joining in with stories, developing role play, drawing and writing and playing in the garden. Close and caring relationships increase children's sense of trust and help them to develop a strong sense of self.

Helping children make a positive contribution

The provision is good.

Children are developing a positive attitude towards others and gaining an understanding about the wider world. They are able to access some resources that show positive images of race, gender and culture, however, these are limited, and there are no resources that reflect positive images of people with disabilities. They have good opportunities to learn about their local community as they visit parks, shops and go on local walks.

The childminder has realistic expectations of children's behaviour. She implements a range of good strategies to promote positive behaviour that help children understand right from wrong. Children respond positively to the childminder's praise and encouragement, for example they willingly help to tidy up, share toys and take turns. They show care and concern for one another and generally behave very well.

Children benefit from the good relationships between the childminder and parents. Good communication ensures parents are kept very well informed of all aspects of the childminding practice and the care, welfare and progress of their children.

Organisation

The organisation is good.

The well organised environment and good daily routines ensure that children are happy and well settled. Good opportunities are made for free play, social interaction, resting, eating and going out. This means that children are confident to initiate and extend their own play and learning.

The childminders good knowledge, skills and positive attitude towards extended training enhances the care of children. Policies and procedures are implemented effectively to promote the welfare and learning of children, and underpin the good quality care.

All policies, procedures and records are shared with parents which contributes to continuity in the children's care, and ensures that their individual needs are met. Overall the provision meets the needs of the children who attend.
