Introduction

This inspection was carried out by Ofsted under Sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of the registered early years provision. 'Early years provision' refers to provision regulated by Ofsted for children from birth to 31 August following their fifth birthday (the early years age group). The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and welfare, known as the Early Years Foundation Stage.

The provider must provide a copy of this report to all parents with children at the setting where reasonably practicable. The provider must provide a copy of the report to any other person who asks for one, but may charge a fee for this service (The Childcare (Inspection) Regulations 2008 regulations 9 and 10).

The setting also makes provision for children older than the early years age group which is registered on the voluntary and/or compulsory part(s) of the Childcare Register. This report does not include an evaluation of that provision, but a comment about compliance with the requirements of the Childcare Register is included in Annex B.

Please see our website for more information about each childcare provider. We publish inspection reports, conditions of registration and details of complaints we receive where we or the provider take action to meet the requirements of registration.

Description of the childminding

The childminder was registered in 2011. She lives with her husband and child age two years. They live close to the Boroughbridge road in the City of York. The childminder uses the ground floor and two bedrooms and bathroom on the first floor. There is an enclosed area at the rear of the property used for outside play. She is within walking distance of local parks, other amenities and schools within the community.

She is registered to care for a maximum of five children, under the age of eight years, of these, two may be in the early years age range and of these, one may be under one year. There are currently two children in the early years age group attending on various days. The childminder is registered on the Early Years Register and both the compulsory and voluntary parts of Childcare Register.

The childminder is a member of the National Childminding Association.

The overall effectiveness of the early years provision

Overall the quality of the provision is good.

Children enjoy their time in the childminders welcoming home where they make good progress in their learning and development. Effective documentation is in place and maintained to a high standard, thus contributing to the safe organisation and welfare of the children. Partnerships with parents are effective, information is shared both verbally and in writing, which in turn, promotes inclusive care for each child. The childminder has not yet formally evaluated her childminding provision. However, since her registration there has been ongoing development linking to the information she receives.

What steps need to be taken to improve provision further?

To further improve the early years provision the registered person should:

- monitor and evaluate the quality of the childminding service and use to prioritise the areas for further development.

The effectiveness of leadership and management of the early years provision

The childminder has effective safeguarding procedures in place and makes parents aware of her responsibilities in protecting children. Through completing safeguarding training and reading, she has developed her understanding and knowledge. Information, along with contact details for the relevant agencies is readily available. Records, such as, those of accidents and attendance are completed and available for inspection. The childminder monitors her home for safety and through effective supervision ensures children's safety at all times. She checks the identity of visitors when appropriate and records all visits. The childminder has carried out risk assessments and made safe any potential dangers to children, covering all areas of the premises, garden and the different outings undertaken. The childminders effective supervision and good childcare practice ensures children play safely and freely whilst in her care.

The childminder is motivated and committed to developing her childcare skills through training and workshops with other childcare providers. The childminder has embraced the Early Years Foundation Stage. She knows the children in her care very well and plans and provides a wide range of activities and resources that reflects their individual interests and stages of development. She evaluates her practice and seeks the views from parents. These systems help her to monitor her own practice, but are not fully effective in prioritising the areas for further development.

The childminder has good working relationships with the parents and carers, giving written and verbal feedback on a daily basis. The individual children's learning journals are well completed to observe and assess where children are making progress, the overview of children's learning enables parents to support their child's development and learning. In addition, for new parents she invites them for visits so they are confident in leaving children in her care. Children experience effective continuity of care because the childminder has made good partnerships with parents.

The childminder operates an inclusive practice and warmly welcomes all children into her setting. Children get out and about in their local community and access activities to support their understanding of others. This helps children recognise and value the importance of respecting one another and their differences. The childminder provides an enabling environment with a good range of activities and resources to support children's learning and development.

The quality and standards of the early years provision and outcomes for children

The children are happy, confident and settle easily into the welcoming and child-orientated environment. Children are encouraged to develop a positive sense of identity. Low level storage is provided so children can self-select and make independent choices in their play and learning. Children freely access the whole of the ground floor and garden. The childminder ensures they have daily opportunities for fresh air and robust physical play. They enjoy healthy snacks of fruit and the childminder ensures a good standard of hygiene is followed. The children build their independence through learning to wash their hands when coming in from outside and before snacks.

All children make good progress towards their early learning goals, because they are provided with a variety of interesting play based activities. This is enhanced through the childminder's positive interaction and questioning techniques. Children's progress is well documented in their individual development folders and supported with photographic evidence, observations and assessments. The possible next steps in learning are formally identified. Planning then follows on to support further development.

Children benefit from the warm and homely environment, where their uniqueness is fully recognised and promoted. They demonstrate confidence and include adults in their play, pretending to make cups of tea and making toast. They use their developing language skills to recall and explain what activities they enjoy. Children enjoy a warm and trusting relationship with the childminder and respond effectively to her. They develop their communication and listening skills, showing an interest in a wide range of resources and story books. Children have many opportunities to draw and mark make, all well supported and encouraged by the childminder. Children develop their creativity, as they do collage and use different paint techniques, supporting their observation and colour recognition skills. Children's understanding of number and counting is supported in everyday situations and by singing song and opportunities to weigh quantities when they bake. The children play well together, their behaviour is good, as they socialise with other children, learning to share and take turns.

Children have many opportunities to learn about the real world, learning about nature as they observe the changing seasons when going for walks. Their physical good health is effectively promoted, through access to fresh air and the many outdoor activities. For example, they enjoy the opportunities to use the equipment in the local park where their coordination, balancing and climbing skills are challenged, in a safe and controlled environment. Indoors children have great fun playing games and role playing different situations, developing their vocabulary. Children learn about keeping themselves safe in the childminders home and when on outings. The childminder supports children's understanding about road safety and water safety, through stories and books.
