

Inspection report for children's home

---

Unique reference number	SC059203
Inspection date	14/03/2014
Inspector	Nicholas Murphy
Type of inspection	Interim
Provision subtype	Children's home

---

Date of last inspection	18/11/2013
--------------------------------	------------

---

© Crown copyright 2014

Website: www.ofsted.gov.uk

This document may be reproduced in whole or in part for non-commercial educational purposes, provided that the information quoted is reproduced without adaptation and the source and date of publication are stated.

Service information

Brief description of the service

This children's home provides short breaks for six children who have a learning disability. The home is operated by the local authority.

The inspection judgements and what they mean

Good progress	The children's home has demonstrated continued improvement in quality of care and outcomes for children and young people and where appropriate has addressed all requirements and the large majority of recommendations that were raised at the previous inspection.
Satisfactory progress	The children's home has maintained quality of care and outcomes for children and young people and where appropriate has addressed all requirements and the majority of recommendations that were raised at the previous inspection.
Inadequate progress	The children's home has failed to address one or more requirements and/or has not met the majority of recommendations and/or the quality of care and outcomes for children and young people have declined since the last full inspection.

Progress

Since their previous inspection the service is judged to be making good progress.

The home received a full inspection in November 2013, when it was judged to be outstanding in all areas and for overall effectiveness. No statutory requirements or recommendations were made. Since that time, the home has continued to make improvements. The Registered Manager has ensured that the home meets new regulations. She has also been proactive in addressing requirements which have not yet come into force. For example, the home has completed a risk assessment of the locality in conjunction with the police and local authority. This ensures that any potential risks to young people can be more effectively identified and managed.

Outcomes for young people are excellent. Young people relish the time that they spend at the home. One parent said, 'My child just loves it here.' In addition, young people make clear, evidenced progress in a range of areas. Monthly reports detail the improvements that young people make in achieving their individual goals. These include self-care skills, such as brushing their teeth without close supervision. Records for another young person show how their fine motor skills have improved, meaning that they are now able to cut up their own food at the dining table. This promotes young people's independence and enhances their self-esteem.

Placement plans are highly individualised to the needs of each young person. They are written in a child-centred, personalised way, giving priority to the wishes and feelings of the young person. For example, one young person's plan in relation to medication specifies that staff must ask them how they would prefer to take it. Plans are regularly updated to take account of changes as the young person matures or learns new skills. This ensures that young people are continually being set new targets to develop to the best of their ability.

Staff are zealous in enabling young people to exercise as much choice as possible when they come to stay. Young people have freedom to choose their meals and what activities they want to do. Staffing levels are sufficient to ensure that young people are not restricted in their choice of a wide range of stimulating activities and outings. These include group shopping expeditions, which are eagerly anticipated by young people. Such trips are not only enjoyable but also build confidence, providing social interaction and experience of handling money.

Parents are confident that their children are safe when they come to stay. Staff use their skills and the quality of their relationships with young people to manage behaviour effectively and without drama. Consequently, the incidence of physical intervention is virtually unknown. Young people get on well with each other. They make meaningful friendships and take pleasure in each others' company. This gives young people feelings of security and well-being and maximises the benefit that they derive from each visit.

About this inspection

The purpose of this inspection is to assure children and young people, parents, the public, local authorities and government of the quality and standard of the service provided. The inspection was carried out under the Care Standards Act 2000 to assess the effectiveness of the service and to consider how well it complies with the relevant regulations and meets the national minimum standards.

The report details the progress made by the provider since the last full inspection, identifies any further strengths, any areas for improvement and makes judgements as outlined in the Inspection of children's homes – framework for inspection.