

Childminder Report

Inspection date	16 September 2015
Previous inspection date	23 February 2012

The quality and standards of the early years provision	This inspection:	Met
	Previous inspection:	Met

Summary of key findings for parents

The provision meets requirements

- The childminder understands her responsibilities with regard to child protection and safeguarding children. She understands her accountability to report any concerns and keep appropriate records.
- The childminder knows how to plan activities that help children learn. She has a varied range of toys and resources to meet the differing ages, abilities and backgrounds of the children.
- The childminder knows how to monitor and reflect on her practice. She regularly attends training to keep up to date with changes in childcare practice and regulation.
- The childminder keeps her first-aid training up to date. This means she knows how to respond to accidents and emergencies.
- The childminder maintains records with relevant details of any children she cares for.
- The childminder understands the importance of developing an effective partnership with parents in order to meet the needs of the children.
- The childminder understands the importance of a healthy lifestyle for children and the promotion of this through fresh air, exercise and a healthy diet.

There were no children present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.

Inspection activities

- The inspector sampled the documentation that the childminder uses to support her work.
- The inspector and the childminder discussed her methods of assessing children's progress and her planning for children's development.
- The inspector and the childminder discussed the childminder's self-evaluation systems and her improvement plan, including changes made since the last inspection.
- The inspector viewed the spaces, toys and equipment available for childminding purposes.

This inspection was carried out by Ofsted under sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of provision that is registered on the Early Years Register. The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and care, known as the Early Years Foundation Stage.

Any complaints about the inspection or the report should be made following the procedures set out in the guidance 'Complaints procedure: raising concerns and making complaints about Ofsted', which is available from Ofsted's website: www.gov.uk/government/organisations/ofsted. If you would like Ofsted to send you a copy of the guidance, please telephone 0300 123 4234, or email enquiries@ofsted.gov.uk.

The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (Ofsted) regulates and inspects to achieve excellence in the care of children and young people, and in education and skills for learners of all ages. It regulates and inspects childcare and children's social care, and inspects the Children and Family Court Advisory Support Service (Cafcass), schools, colleges, initial teacher training, work-based learning and skills training, adult and community learning, and education and training in prisons and other secure establishments. It assesses council children's services, and inspects services for looked after children, safeguarding and child protection.
