Summary of key findings for parents

The provision meets requirements

- The childminder has a good understanding of how to work in partnership with parents and other settings that children attend to promote consistency in children's care and learning.
- The childminder demonstrates a good understanding of how to plan and organise interesting activities that complement the learning that takes place in other establishments.
- The childminder knows how to manage children's behaviour positively. She knows how to help children build relationships with each other and learn to respect and value diversity.
- The childminder is fully aware of her responsibilities in meeting the safeguarding and welfare requirements. She has completed safeguarding training and knows what action to take should she have any concerns about a child's welfare.
- The childminder understands how to promote children's health and physical well-being. She explains how children have many opportunities for daily fresh air and exercise, for example, as they walk to and from school, and play in the garden.
- The childminder has addressed the previous recommendation and uses self-evaluation to reflect upon her practice and make improvements to her setting.
- The childminder ensures that she regularly undertakes required training. For example, she is qualified in paediatric first aid. She explains how additional training will be used to enhance the provision, in order to improve outcomes for children.
- The childminder has all the required documentation in place. She has a range of policies and procedures that provide clear information to parents about how her setting operates.

There were no children present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.

Inspection activities

- The inspector looked at the areas of the premises used for childminding.
- The inspector discussed with the childminder how she intends to support children's play and learning.
- The inspector checked evidence that appropriate suitability checks have been undertaken on all adults living and working in the household.
- The inspector looked at safeguarding policies and a range of other supporting documentation the childminder will use.

This inspection was carried out by Ofsted under sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of provision that is registered on the Early Years Register. The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and care, known as the Early Years Foundation Stage.

Any complaints about the inspection or the report should be made following the procedures set out in the guidance 'Complaints procedure: raising concerns and making complaints about Ofsted', which is available from Ofsted's website: www.gov.uk/government/organisations/ofsted. If you would like Ofsted to send you a copy of the guidance, please telephone 0300 123 4234, or email enquiries@ofsted.gov.uk.

The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (Ofsted) regulates and inspects to achieve excellence in the care of children and young people, and in education and skills for learners of all ages. It regulates and inspects childcare and children's social care, and inspects the Children and Family Court Advisory Support Service (Cafcass), schools, colleges, initial teacher training, work-based learning and skills training, adult and community learning, and education and training in prisons and other secure establishments. It assesses council children's services, and inspects services for looked after children, safeguarding and child protection.
