Inspection findings

Effectiveness of the leadership and management is outstanding

The childminder drives improvement extremely well, and uses self-evaluation to constantly identify and target further improvements to provide the very best outcomes for children. For example, she regularly visits other high-quality settings to observe and gain further ideas to develop children's experiences even further. Safeguarding is effective. The childminder has a comprehensive knowledge of safeguarding, including the procedures to follow in the event of any child protection concerns. Partnerships with other settings children attend are highly effective. The childminder shares a wide range of information to provide excellent continuity for children.

Quality of teaching, learning and assessment is outstanding

The childminder uses very accurate assessments to plan purposeful activities that help children to achieve their next steps in learning. She interacts extremely well with children and uses excellent teaching skills to extend their learning. The childminder inspires children's exceptional interest in learning. For example, children experimented with wet and dry sand to find out which made the best dinosaur trails, and identified which dinosaur made the biggest foot print. The childminder recognises that some mathematical resources are no longer usable. She plans to extend these to provide even further opportunities for children to extend their skills. The childminder promotes children's interest in early reading extremely well. For example, children thoroughly enjoy listening to stories and know that they can find out information from books.

Personal development, behaviour and welfare are outstanding

Children are extremely happy in this highly welcoming home. They behave exceptionally well and have very kind relationships with each other. Children become thoroughly absorbed in their learning activities and have excellent levels of concentration. They develop an excellent understanding of the importance of handling tools safely. For example, they learn to use knives to cut their healthy snacks with exceptional control and coordination. Children have excellent opportunities to develop their physical skills and enjoy playing outdoors in the extremely well-equipped garden. The childminder organises a superb variety of outings that extend children's understanding of the wider world. For example, children learn about history during trips to museums and castles. They develop an excellent interest in how things work, such as visiting a science centre.

Outcomes for children are outstanding

All children make rapid progress from their starting points. Older children make exceptional progress in recognising letters and their sounds. They learn to recognise and write their names. Children have excellent social skills and learn to value others and treat them with respect. They develop a wide range of skills that prepare them for school.
