Summary of key findings for parents

The provision meets requirements

- The childminder is aware of her duty to protect children and keep them safe. She knows what to do if she has concerns about their welfare. For example, she keeps her knowledge up to date by completing safeguarding training.
- The childminder understands how to encourage children's learning and development. She knows to observe and assess their development and use this information to plan activities that help children progress from their starting points.
- The childminder knows to evaluate her provision, and involve parents and children to bring about further improvement.
- The childminder supports children's physical well-being. For instance, she is aware of the need to teach children to be physically active and make healthy food choices.
- The childminder understands how to encourage children's good behaviour. For example, she knows to teach children to share and show respect to others.
- The childminder recognises the importance of working in partnership with parents and others involved in children's care and learning to meet their individual needs.

There were no children present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.

Inspection activities

- The inspector held discussions with the childminder about her knowledge of the requirements of the early years foundation stage.
- The inspector looked at and discussed the toys and resources available for childminding.
- The inspector looked at documentation, including the childminder's suitability check and children's records.
- The inspector discussed the childminder's self-evaluation, safeguarding knowledge and professional development.
- The inspector looked round the areas of the home used for childminding.
