Summary of key findings for parents

This provision is good

- Partnerships with parents are strong, helping to provide children with continuity in their learning. Parents actively participate in special events and fun days.
- Managers work well with other professionals to identify all children's needs and help them make good progress. Staff support individual children well and use specific strategies. For example, they make good use of visual timetables to help children develop language and an understanding of routines.
- Children use a range of multicultural resources and learn about the similarities and differences between themselves and others.
- Staff maintain children's good levels of self-esteem, for example, they consistently praise children's achievements.
- Staff provide 'taster' sessions for children who are ready to move up to the next age-group room. This supports children's emotional well-being and helps them feel secure in their new learning environment.
- Children settle quickly into the setting. Staff develop close relationships with new parents and children, helping them to feel confident and safe.

It is not yet outstanding because:

- Staff sometimes miss opportunities for toddlers and older children to learn about safety.
- Staff do not consistently support literacy as well as possible.

What the setting needs to do to improve further

To further improve the quality of the early years provision the provider should:

- make better use of opportunities that arise to extend children's understanding of ways to keep themselves safe
- extend the support for children to practise skills that prepare them for early reading and writing.

Inspection activities

- The inspector carried out a joint observation with the deputy manager.
- The inspector held an interview with the manager and the directors.
- The inspector observed interactions between staff and children in the indoor and outdoor learning environments.
- The inspector spoke to parents about their views on the provision.
- The inspector looked at a range of documentation including staff suitability checks, children's assessments and safeguarding procedures.

Inspection findings

Effectiveness of the leadership and management is good

Safeguarding is effective. Staff complete training to understand how to identify children who may be at risk from extreme behaviours and harm. The management team has strong recruitment procedures to ensure staff are suitable to work with children. Regular supervision helps to support staff's professional development and maintain good teaching practices, which benefit children's learning. Managers self-evaluate their provision well, helping to improve the setting. For example, an electronic code system has been installed to strengthen security. There are also plans to create a new room for babies to explore their senses and a book corner to encourage children's love of books. Managers monitor children's progress well and develop ways to close any gaps in learning.

Quality of teaching, learning and assessment is good

Children engage in a good range of activities. For example, babies enjoy making pictures using brushes and older children use string and paint to make firework patterns. Staff talk to children about previous experiences to help them develop language and an understanding of the world. Toddlers play with shaving foam and older children enjoy crunching cereal and dry spaghetti, developing their understanding of textures. Older children enjoy learning about seasons through an indoor autumn scene. Staff monitor children's progress well and plan activities relating to their specific interests and needs. Assessment procedures are good and staff know how to move children on to their next stage of learning.

Personal development, behaviour and welfare are good

Staff are good role models. They help all children to behave well and teach them to have respect for each other and the environment. All children have formed secure attachments to staff, who respond warmly to their needs. Children have plenty of opportunities to play outside. For example, while older children enjoy a game of hide and seek with staff, toddlers enjoy playing on the slide and babies play in their new outdoor hut. This enables all children to receive fresh air and exercise, helping to contribute to a healthy lifestyle.

Outcomes for children are good

Children are happy and make good progress from their starting points. Older children develop useful skills in preparation for school, for example, they learn how to use scissors. Babies develop good physical coordination, such as learning to feed themselves. Toddlers learn about mathematical concepts, such as 'full' and 'empty', while playing with water in the garden. All children enjoy learning how to care for the setting's animals, developing their sense of responsibility.
