This inspection
The effectiveness of the home and the progress and experiences of children since the most recent full inspection This home was judged good at the last full inspection. At this interim inspection Ofsted judges that it has sustained effectiveness. Children and young people are making good progress because they are living in a safe and stable environment. Staff demonstrate commitment to meeting the young people's needs and keeping them safe. Children and young people understand why they are here and know what to expect because staff fully engage them in the planning and reviewing of their daily lives and futures. Staff recognise that education is an important part of children and young people's lives. They support and encourage children and young people to attend the in-house school provision daily. Staff are proud of what the children and young people have achieved. They understand that the transition into a routine of regular education can be difficult and are working with all of the children and young people to achieve this. Children and young people say that they feel safe, with one reporting, 'The staff look after us and make sure we are alright.' Staff receive safeguarding training as part of their induction to the home. This ensures that they are confident in the procedures to follow, should any concerns arise. The organisation has a number of policies and procedures designed to safeguard young people, and these receive regular review. The manager ensures that children and young people continue to be registered with the various local healthcare services and are supported to attend appointments. Specialist support continues to be available to meet the emotional and psychological needs of children and young people through individual therapeutic sessions. Appropriate arrangements are established for the safe management of medicines to promote the safety and well-being of children and young people. Incidents of children and young people going missing from this home are rare. This reflects the staff team's ability to engage with children and young people and work with them to address any concerns or issues they may have. The use of restraint is low despite some challenging behaviour. This demonstrates the home's commitment to supporting children young people to manage their own behaviours

to good effect.

Children and young people benefit from a physically safe and appropriately secure environment. Fire safety and general health and safety checks are regularly completed.

The home continues to be managed by a suitably qualified manager who has been in post since May 2014. Staff are supported through formal supervision and annual appraisal. Training and development opportunities for staff are available with access to both internal and external training courses.

There has been limited progress in ensuring that the children and young people's guide is more age appropriate for the children and young people living in the home. This previous recommendation has now been raised as a requirement.

Information about this children's home

The home is registered to provide care and accommodation for eight children and young people with emotional and behavioural difficulties. The home is owned by a private company.

What the inspection judgements mean

At the interim inspection we make a judgement on whether the home has improved in effectiveness, sustained effectiveness or declined in effectiveness since the previous full inspection. This is in line with the 'Inspection of children's homes: framework for inspection'.

Information about this inspection

Inspectors have looked closely at the experiences and progress of children and young people living in the children's home. Inspectors considered the quality of work and the difference that adults make to the lives of children and young people. They read case files, watched how professional staff work with children, young people and each other and discussed the effectiveness of help and care given to children and young people. Wherever possible, they talked to children, young people and their families. In addition the inspectors have tried to understand what the children's home knows about how well it is performing, how well it is doing and what difference it is making for the children and young people whom it is trying to help, protect and look after.

This inspection focused on the effectiveness of the home and the progress and experiences of children and young people since the most recent full inspection.

This inspection was carried out under the Care Standards Act 2000 to assess the effectiveness of the service and to consider how well it complies with the Children's Homes (England) Regulations 2015 and the 'Guide to the children's homes regulations including the quality standards'.

Any complaints about the inspection or the report should be made following the procedures set out in the guidance Raising concerns and making complaints about Ofsted, which is available from Ofsted's website: www.gov.uk/government/organisations/ofsted. If you would like Ofsted to send you a copy of the guidance, please telephone 0300 123 4234, or email enquiries@ofsted.gov.uk.

The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (Ofsted) regulates and inspects to achieve excellence in the care of children and young people, and in education and skills for learners of all ages. It regulates and inspects childcare and children's social care, and inspects the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (Cafcass), schools, colleges, initial teacher training, workbased learning and skills training, adult and community learning, and education and training in prisons and other secure establishments. It inspects services for children looked after and child protection.
