Summary of key findings for parents

This provision is good

- Children state that they enjoy attending the club. They comment that they like playing with their friends and taking part in all of the activities. They particularly enjoy being creative and the varied range of foods on offer to them before and after school.
- Children are cared for in a safe and secure environment. The experienced staff have a good understanding of policies and procedures, helping to ensure children's welfare and safety at all times.
- Staff are good role models and children play well together. Staff manage children's behaviour positively and consistently. They regularly praise children, which helps to motivate them in their learning and raises their confidence and self-esteem.
- Staff have established good partnerships with the school children attend. They share relevant information with school teachers to ensure children's individual needs are met. This helps staff to provide a consistent and complementary approach to children's learning and development.

It is not yet outstanding because:

- The supervision of less-experienced staff does not have a strong enough emphasis on raising the quality of interaction, in order to further support children to make the best possible progress and complete tasks for themselves.

What the setting needs to do to improve further

To further improve the quality of the early years provision the provider should:

- strengthen the supervision of staff to focus more precisely on raising the quality of their interactions with children to a higher level.

Inspection findings

Effectiveness of the leadership and management is good

The arrangements for safeguarding are effective. Staff know what action to take to keep children safe and to protect them from harm. Recruitment, vetting, induction and ongoing suitability checks are effective and help to ensure staff are suitable to work with children. The qualified, skilled and enthusiastic staff group continually develops their knowledge and skills through participation in additional training courses. They seek and act upon children's views on a daily basis. For example, children can identify new resources they would like to play with. This helps towards continuous and targeted improvements. Partnerships with parents are very positive. Parents are provided with good information about the club, the activities and their children's care. Parents speak very highly of the club and the staff. They talk about how much their children enjoy attending and say they are often reluctant to go home, because they are having so much fun.

Quality of teaching, learning and assessment is good

Children settle quickly when they arrive and demonstrate that they understand the daily routine as they gather to sit together in a group. They are supported well to be independent and confident learners who enjoy taking part in a varied range of interesting and challenging activities. Children learn to respect each other's opinions and ideas. They take turns to talk about their day, listening politely when others speak. Children are interested and engaged in the experiences available to them. Staff plan activities based on children's interests and things they enjoy. Children are eager to share their achievements, for example, when they design and make key rings to take home or mould and shape play dough. The key person for the younger children knows them well. She provides any additional support or encouragement needed to promote and support children's all-round development.

Personal development, behaviour and welfare are good

Staff are very vigilant about ensuring children's welfare and safety. Detailed records are maintained and consideration is continually given to any potential risks or hazards. Appropriate arrangements are in place with regard to children's health and medical needs. Children are extremely confident in their surroundings and they build strong friendships with other children from different age groups. They are creative and play imaginatively as they engage in role play. Staff promote a positive and supportive environment where all children play well with each other. Staff are good role models and they speak to children respectfully, reminding them about rules or boundaries. Children are provided with healthy and nutritious food and enjoy eating hot and cold meals and fresh fruit. Children have a good knowledge of the importance of leading a healthy lifestyle. They have opportunities every day for physical exercise and they follow good hygiene practices. Children enjoy their time outdoors, where they have plenty of space to be physically active.
