Summary of key findings for parents

This provision is good

- Staff are consistent in their approach to behaviour management. For example, they teach children about personal space, using the phrase 'you are in my personal bubble' to explain to others they are not happy and they need to move away. Children behave well.
- Staff work closely with parents to shape the service they provide. Recent changes have been made to the information that staff share about the club and the activities in which the children take part. This helps to enhance continuity of care for the children.
- Staff encourage all children to work together and to respect each other's views. Children help each other to understand the club rules, as older children explain them so the younger children can understand what is expected. This helps to support equality in the club.
- Staff work well with children to support their confidence in trying new activities and sports. Children eagerly participate, helping to build on their physical abilities.

It is not yet outstanding because:

- Routines do not always run as smoothly as possible. Staff do not always make the best of opportunities when moving between areas to maximise activity time for the children.
- At times, when older children participate in boisterous games, staff do not provide younger children with an alternative activity.

What the setting needs to do to improve further

To further improve the quality of the early years provision the provider should:

- review and improve routines to make the most of activity time for the children
- support staff to recognise when to offer younger children more choice in physical activities.

Inspection activities

- The inspector observed children in the main halls and playground.
- The inspector spoke with the manager, staff and children at appropriate times during the inspection.
- The inspector looked at a sample of documents, including safeguarding policies and procedures, staff suitability and qualifications.
- The inspector discussed with the manager how they maintain good progress.

Inspection findings

Effectiveness of the leadership and management is good

Safeguarding is effective. The manager and staff have a clear understanding of the procedures to follow if they have any concerns regarding children's welfare. There are effective safety procedures in place to ensure children's security at the time of collection. The manager reviews staff practice and uses this to help to identify any training from which they would benefit. Recent training has helped staff to tailor activities to make better use of the resources they have available. This helps children to enjoy their time at the club.

Quality of teaching, learning and assessment is good

Staff plan good-quality activities, helping children to enjoy their time at the club. Staff work closely with the children to plan enjoyable activities. For example, children have fun designing their own superhero capes. They work with the staff to find different materials to use, such as pipe cleaners, glitter and stickers. This helps to support their imagination and to develop confidence to work things out. Children gain skills to keep themselves and others safe. For example, they learn how to hold scissors when they are walking.

Personal development, behaviour and welfare are good

Children develop good bonds with the staff. Staff take time to find out about the children at the start of the camps, to help them settle quickly. Children thoroughly enjoy enhancing their physical development. Staff support the children to move in different ways. For example, they learn how to complete 'jumping jacks'. Children learn the importance of completing warm-ups before they start any exercise. This helps them to learn about their own health and well-being. All children learn the importance of being careful to respect any food allergies. Older children explain to younger children why they need to wash their hands after eating certain foods, such as foods that may contain nuts. Children are confident to ask the staff about their snacks, and check if they are safe to eat around children with allergies. This helps support children's well-being.
