Main inspection findings

Part 1. Quality of education provided

Paragraph 2(1), 2(1)(a), 2(1)(b), 2(1)(b)(i), 2(1)(b)(ii), 2(2), 2(2)(a), 2(2)(b) and 2(2)(c)

- The school has a clear and effective written curriculum policy which is suitable for the five to 11 age range. Pupils follow a programme of teaching which is broad and balanced. It provides regular opportunities for pupils to develop their learning by researching areas of personal interest and work with others on joint research projects.
- The school proposes that pupils have the opportunity to study a broad range of subjects in key stages 1 and 2. These will promote their knowledge and understanding in languages and literacy, mathematics, science, technology, the arts and humanities. Pupils also study Spanish as a modern foreign language.
- Leaders have designed detailed schemes of work which the teacher adapts to suit individual aptitudes and the pupils' personal interests. Leaders have constructed schemes of work in a way which positively promote the fundamental British values of democracy, the rule of law, individual liberty and mutual respect and tolerance of those with different faiths and beliefs.

Paragraph 2(2)(d), 2(2)(d)(i), 2(2)(d)(ii), 2(2)(e), 2(2)(e)(i), 2(2)(e)(ii), 2(2)(e)(iii), 2(2)(h) and 2(2)(i)

- The school has detailed plans in place to promote pupils' personal, social, health and economic education effectively. This is an integral part of the school's core curriculum. Leaders thread pupils' personal, social, health and economic education through a broad range of areas of learning. The school's programme reflects its aims and ethos and promotes an understanding of the protected characteristics identified in the 2010 Equality Act.
- Leaders develop learning through the values of 'freedom', 'commitment' and 'responsibility'. Leaders encourage pupils to consider these values when researching areas of personal interest and during joint research topics.

Paragraph 3, 3(a), 3(b), 3(c), 3(d), 3(e), 3(f), 3(g), 3(h), 3(i), 3(j) and 4

- Pupils receive a broad range of opportunities to progress in all aspects of their education. Leaders have designed a curriculum which allows pupils to explore learning in many ways. For example, pupils undertake personal learning projects that they choose themselves and are of interest to them. Teachers skilfully craft the requirements of the national curriculum around these chosen projects to ensure that pupils increase their understanding and develop their skills. This encourages pupils to be self-motivated and able to learn and think for themselves. Additionally, the use of common projects enables pupils to work together effectively to develop their learning as a team.
- Resources are of a good quality, quantity and range for all pupils. Teachers present them well in the classroom. This allows ease of access and encourages pupils to use them effectively.
- The links between pupils' academic needs and their spiritual, moral, social and cultural development are a strength of the provision. Leaders weave pupils' spiritual, moral, social and cultural development through lessons.
- Teachers are effective in planning a wide range of classroom activities. Teachers' planning ensures productive use of learning time. Teachers demonstrate a good knowledge and understanding of the subject matter that they teach the pupils.
- Leaders manage pupils' behaviour exceptionally well. They focus on positive incentives rather than sanctions. Pupils are given a wide range of choices in the ways in which they learn and the places that the learning takes place. Pupils enjoy regular opportunities to share, discuss and reflect on their learning.
- Leaders ensure that there are always high levels of supervision. Strong relationships between pupils and teachers reflect the expectations set by leaders. Good supervision levels ensure that pupils of all ages enjoy regular access to both indoor and outdoor learning opportunities.
- Teachers evaluate pupils' performance closely and produce daily reports on progress. Assessment systems are thorough. Teachers use them effectively to support the personalised learning programmes of each pupil.
- The standards for the quality of education provided are likely to be met.

Part 2. Spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils

Paragraph 5, 5(a), 5(b), 5(b)(i), 5(b)(ii), 5(b)(iii), 5(b)(iv), 5(b)(v), 5(b)(vi), 5(b)(vii), 5(c), 5(d), 5(d)(i), 5(d)(ii) and 5(d)(iii)

- As a democratic community, the development of spiritual, moral, social and cultural values of the pupils is core to the existence of this school. The promotion of spiritual, moral, social and cultural education together with fundamental British values is a golden thread which weaves through the curriculum. It also links closely with the promotion of pupils' rights and responsibilities.
- By encouraging pupils to use their freedom to choose their own learning projects and to decide as a group which common projects to undertake, leaders enable pupils to develop their self-knowledge, self-esteem and self-confidence. Teachers encourage pupils to evaluate their own learning and to make decisions on how they want to move forward.

- Teachers encourage pupils to learn about different religions and their positive contribution to our society, including atheism and humanism. Leaders ensure that pupils have a clear understanding of a range of cultural traditions by encouraging pupils to bring ideas for learning from their own family traditions. Teachers weave these ideas through the curriculum.
- Teachers implement every change in the classroom after going through a collective decision-making process. In this way, pupils gain an understanding of how citizens can influence decision-making through the democratic process. Pupils choose classroom rules to help them to distinguish right from wrong. The school's ethos, 'with freedom comes responsibility' is key to this.
- Pupils go on a range of visits to various public institutions such as museums and libraries. They also set their own rules in school. These are discussed, decided and voted on in the daily meetings that they hold. In this way they develop an understanding of culture and of the rule of law.
- Leaders have procedures in place to inhibit the promotion of extremist or partisan materials and views.
- The standard for the spiritual, moral, social and cultural development of pupils is likely to be met.

Part 3. Welfare, health and safety of pupils

The anti-bullying policy clearly sets out the staff's responsibilities in dealing with bullying. Leaders ensure that it takes into account the ages of the pupils in school. It clearly identifies the strategies that leaders implement to prevent bullying.
