Summary of key findings for parents

This provision meets requirements

- The childminder holds a current paediatric first-aid certificate. This means that she has up-to-date knowledge of how to meet the needs of children in the event of an accident.
- The childminder completes risk assessments to help keep her premises safe. She recognises what may constitute a risk or hazard to children of all ages.
- The childminder is well qualified and experienced. She appreciates the significance of keeping up to date with professional development opportunities to refresh her knowledge.
- The childminder fully understands how to safeguard children and identifies the possible signs and symptoms of abuse and neglect. She talks about what she would do if she had any child protection concerns.
- The childminder discusses planning enjoyable activities based on children's individual interests and needs. She knows how to monitor children's progress and how to offer additional support to close any potential gaps.
- The childminder is knowledgeable about ways to support children with leading a healthy lifestyle. For instance, she intends to grow fruit in her garden with the children and attend sessions at the local children's centre about good hygiene procedures, such as the importance of brushing your teeth.
- The childminder is fully aware of the importance of working in partnership with parents. She has put in place effective strategies to ensure they are kept informed about their children's ongoing development.
- The childminder has considered ways to help her reflect on and improve her practice.

There were no children present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.
