Summary of key findings for parents

This provision meets requirements

- The childminder comprehends how to support the development of young children. She understands ways of finding out what children can do and knows how to assess if they are achieving in line with typical outcomes for their ages. She discusses the range of activities and experiences she provides for children to meet their differing interests and needs.
- The childminder recognises the importance of partnership working. She will ensure continuity in care through working with parents and the staff in the other settings children attend.
- The childminder understands how to support children's personal development and to ensure their well-being. For example, she has strategies in place to encourage the development of social skills, confidence and independence. She also talks about the nutritious foods she supplies and the ways in which she provides physical exercise for children.
- The childminder requests feedback from parents and children to help her evaluate the effectiveness of her practice. She actively builds on her knowledge and skills by learning more about early years education. She continues to develop and improve her practice.
- The childminder knows how to safeguard children. She has a good knowledge of the signs that may indicate that a child's welfare is at risk and of the action to take if she has a concern.

There were no children present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.
