Summary of key findings

This provision meets requirements

- The childminder has a sound understanding of how to safeguard children. She fully understands her role and responsibility to report any child protection concerns she has to the relevant agency.
- The childminder talks with enthusiasm about how she plans from the observations of the children to ensure that she is meeting their individual needs. The childminder shows she is aware of the importance of sharing information with parents and carers to support continuity in children's learning and development.
- The childminder uses self-evaluation to identify her priorities and she describes how attending training will keep her up to date with current legislation. She talks about how she will implement a variety of policies and procedures to support her practice.
- The childminder explains how she encourages children to have healthy lifestyles. For example, she will provide plenty of opportunities for children to be physically active outside in the fresh air.
- The childminder understands how to manage children's behaviour. She recognises the need to teach children to be independent and to develop their confidence and self-esteem. She believes that encouraging children to be kind, respectful and to develop positive relationships is important.
- The childminder knows the importance of providing a safe and secure environment. She has risk assessment procedures in place for her home and for outings.

There were no children present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.
