Summary of key findings

This provision meets requirements

- The childminder knows how to promote children's safety in her home and during outings to minimise accidents and injuries. The childminder's home is free from hazards.
- The childminder recognises the importance of working in partnership with parents and other professionals to support children's care and learning.
- The childminder has addressed the actions raised at her last inspection. She has attended training to enhance her practice and make improvements to what she can provide for children. Further focus is required to ensure that improvements are sustained.
- The childminder has a good understanding of safeguarding and is able to identify signs and symptoms of abuse, including wider safeguarding concerns such as the 'Prevent' duty. She is aware of her role and responsibility to safeguard children and knows who to contact should she have any concerns regarding children's safety or welfare.
- The childminder knows how to promote children's health and physical well-being through daily routines and providing healthy snacks.
- The childminder has a good understanding of how to positively manage children's behaviour. She places a value in supporting children with their emotions, so that they have a better understanding of themselves and others.
- The childminder has sufficient knowledge of how children learn. She understands the importance of quality teaching.

There were no children in the early years age range present when this inspection took place. The findings in this report are based on evidence gathered from discussions with those who care for the children and an inspection of the premises, equipment and relevant documentation. Where there are no early years children present, no judgement is made on the quality of the early years provision as there is no reliable evidence on which to assess its impact on children. The report states whether the provider continues to meet the requirements of registration.

Inspection activities

- This was the first routine inspection the provider received since the COVID-19 pandemic began. The inspector discussed the impact of the pandemic with the provider and has taken that into account in their evaluation of the provider.
- The childminder showed the inspector the premises and discussed how she ensures it is safe and suitable.
- The inspector looked at relevant documentation and evidence of the suitability of persons living in the household.
- The inspector took account of the views of parents through the written feedback provided.

We carried out this inspection under sections 49 and 50 of the Childcare Act 2006 on the quality and standards of provision that is registered on the Early Years Register. The registered person must ensure that this provision complies with the statutory framework for children's learning, development and care, known as the early years foundation stage.

If you are not happy with the inspection or the report, you can complain to Ofsted.

The Office for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills (Ofsted) regulates and inspects to achieve excellence in the care of children and young people, and in education and skills for learners of all ages. It regulates and inspects childcare and children's social care, and inspects the Children and Family Court Advisory and Support Service (Cafcass), schools, colleges, initial teacher training, further education and skills, adult and community learning, and education and training in prisons and other secure establishments. It assesses council children's services, and inspects services for looked after children, safeguarding and child protection.
