

Inspection of a good school: Central Community Nursery School

43 Nuns Street, Derby, Derbyshire DE1 3LR

Inspection date: 14 March 2023

Outcome

Central Community Nursery School continues to be a good school.

What is it like to attend this school?

Central Community Nursery School is a special place. It is an inclusive, warm setting where children thrive. Staff know all the children well and want the very best for them.

Children are happy and inquisitive. They explore their surroundings with growing confidence. Staff challenge children to try new things. Adults make sure that children feel comfortable and safe, so they are able to take the next step in their learning. Staff encourage children to have a go for themselves. For example, children pour their own milk and butter their own toast at snack time.

Children learn the importance of sharing. By voting for the story they would like to listen to during 'Together Time', children learn to accept the views and choices of others. Staff show children how to handle animals with care. Children learn to be kind and sensitive by feeding and grooming the nursery's two rabbits, Snowy and Rupert.

Children behave really well. They receive lots of positive praise. Expectations are clear and consistent. Children play nicely with each other. Staff encourage good manners. Children are polite and respectful.

Parents are very positive about the quality of the support their children receive. They recognise the dedication of the staff at Central.

What does the school do well and what does it need to do better?

The school's curriculum is made up of 10 ambitious curricular goals. For each one, leaders have set out a clear sequence of learning so that children gain the knowledge, skills and vocabulary they need for the next stage of their education. Leaders want all children to become confident communicators. Adults use free-flow time to share key vocabulary. Staff narrate what is happening so that children hear new words and good sentences. Adults take on roles during imaginative play, which encourages children to express themselves. However, staff sometimes miss chances to extend pupils' language. Opportunities to consolidate important knowledge are not always taken.

Leaders have given lots of thought to the books, rhymes and songs that children will hear and read. Staff tell stories with expression, drawing children into the story that is being read. Adults read in a way that excites children and develops an early love for reading.

The leader with responsibility for special educational needs and/or disabilities (SEND) ensures that all children get the right help. Those children who are part of 'Meadow Class' benefit from a nurturing environment and bespoke support. Parents appreciate the great lengths that the school goes to for children with SEND.

Being out in the open is integral to life at Central. Children benefit from enriching outdoor spaces. In the forest area and the gardens, they learn about the natural world. On a minibeast hunt, for example, they found worms and centipedes. They handled them carefully and made detailed observations. On the school's allotment, children get to grow their own food. They also look after the nursery's chickens, collecting the eggs each day. These opportunities, along with daily interactions with the nursery's on-site chef, help the children to understand where their food comes from.

Children also learn about the world beyond the nursery. There are regular visits to important places in the local community, as well trips to the swimming baths and the seaside.

Children are active throughout the day. For example, they make good use of the climbing frames and a rope bridge to improve their coordination and agility. Staff offer advice on how to navigate the equipment successfully. Children with SEND, including those with complex needs, are carefully supported to develop core strength and take risks.

Leaders ensure that staff are well trained to teach in the early years. They make sure that adults have the expertise to support children's individual needs. Staff feel valued at Central. They are part of a team. They know that leaders are always willing to help them.

Those with responsibility for governance have an accurate understanding of the school's strengths and areas for further development. Governors provide school leaders with effective support and challenge.

Safeguarding

The arrangements for safeguarding are effective.

Leaders with responsibility for safeguarding are very knowledgeable. They work well with other agencies to get the right support for children and their families. Leaders make sure that staff are well trained. They provide regular safeguarding updates. Staff know the signs that might show that a child's needs are not being met. Staff know to report any concern they may have, no matter how small. Concerns are shared promptly. Record-keeping is detailed. Governors check to make sure that safeguarding procedures are effective. Children have strong relationships with their trusted adults. They happily go to them when they are distressed and need comforting.

What does the school need to do to improve?

(Information for the school and appropriate authority)

- Staff do not always make the most of opportunities to develop children's understanding. Staff sometimes miss moments to extend pupils' language and communication skills. Occasionally, important knowledge from across the curriculum is not consolidated when chances arise. Leaders must ensure that staff maximise their interactions with children to secure and deepen their learning.

Background

When we have judged a school to be good, we will then normally go into the school about once every four years to confirm that the school remains good. This is called an ungraded inspection, and it is carried out under section 8 of the Education Act 2005. We do not give graded judgements on an ungraded inspection. However, if we find evidence that a school would now receive a higher or lower grade, then the next inspection will be a graded inspection, which is carried out under section 5 of the Act. Usually, this is within one to two years of the date of the ungraded inspection. If we have serious concerns about safeguarding, behaviour or the quality of education, we will deem the ungraded inspection a graded inspection immediately.

This is the second ungraded inspection since we judged the school to be good in January 2013.

How can I feed back my views?

You can use Ofsted Parent View to give Ofsted your opinion on your child's school, or to find out what other parents and carers think. We use information from Ofsted Parent View when deciding which schools to inspect, when to inspect them and as part of their inspection.

The Department for Education has further guidance on how to complain about a school.

Further information

You can search for published performance information about the school.

In the report, 'disadvantaged pupils' refers to those pupils who attract government pupil premium funding: pupils claiming free school meals at any point in the last six years and pupils in care or who left care through adoption or another formal route.
