What is it like to attend this school?

The school promotes high expectations for all and support for one another in a safe environment. Pupils feel valued and accepted. Staff encourage pupils to determine long- and short-term goals that help to shape their future. They empower pupils to take on new challenges. Pupils appreciate the regular mentoring they receive to help them to achieve their aspirations.

Pupils work hard towards achieving a range of qualifications, including GCSEs, functional skills, vocational awards and certificates, including the Prince's Trust Awards. They are well-prepared for the next stages of education, employment and training. The majority of pupils go on to take up courses at colleges and apprenticeships.

Behaviour is good because pupils are taught to distinguish between right and wrong. They make positive choices about behaviour and learning. Pupils develop personal and social skills that relate closely to their individual education, health and care plan targets. This includes effective communication, critical thinking, and teamwork. Interactions and relationships between pupils and staff are positive and respectful. They often share common moments of humour and laughter. Staff enable pupils to discuss their experiences, views and personal concerns confidently. Staff deal with any matters of concern quickly.

What does the school do well and what does it need to do better?

Leaders have a clear rationale for the curriculum offered. They check carefully pupils' entry and end points. The content in each subject builds progressively over time. For example, in English, pupils learn to use grammatical knowledge to proofread and correct various texts. Staff apply a range of assessments to establish what pupils know and understand. They identify any gaps in pupils' knowledge and skills.

Teachers' subject knowledge is secure. They ensure that pupils practise recalling key knowledge they have learned in previous lessons. Pupils take pride in their work. In lessons, pupils share their thoughts keenly with their peers. Sometimes teaching lacks the expertise to deepen pupils' knowledge and understanding. Leaders are aware of this and have a well-coordinated programme of staff professional development to address this.

Staff develop pupils' language and communication skills well. They work closely with external specialists to provide pupils with bespoke support. Staff place great emphasis on pupils learning the meaning of key vocabulary, including through the use of resources. The school endeavours to promote reading for pleasure within the English curriculum. A few pupils are reluctant to engage in reading and lack appropriate segmenting and blending skills when faced with unfamiliar words. Staff are currently being trained to deliver the school's reading and intervention programmes to help those pupils read with greater fluency and accuracy.

Pupils enjoy lessons because teachers make them interactive. The school is calm and pupils move with purpose around the school. There is a shared understanding of how pupils are expected to behave and how staff are required to support them. Adults manage behaviour consistently. They deal with pupils sensitively and with matters quickly. This prevents any incidents and concerns from escalating. Leaders are diligent in tracking pupils' attendance and taking swift action in addressing issues.

Staff encourage pupils to show respect for others. The school supports pupils in developing strategies for managing their emotions. Pupils are taught to safeguard their own mental health, including learning stress management strategies. This helps pupils to understand how best to deal with different situations. Adults know and understand the needs of pupils. They use information well to tailor bespoke support to help develop pupils' academic, social and emotional growth. Pupils learn about healthy and unhealthy relationships, including the right of consent and respecting the different protected characteristics.

Older students greatly appreciate the guidance and increasing opportunities to pursue their interests and career choices. Staff guide pupils in launching their own businesses, such as t-shirt printing, car valeting services, a smoothie bar and tuck shop. These help pupils to learn the importance of enterprise and financial management and how this can impact their future lives. Community visit days encourage pupils to apply personal skills in a social setting. Staff enable pupils to show initiative and contribute positively to society.

The school is an extremely thoughtful and understanding community, where leaders consider the well-being of all, including staff and their workload. Staff work positively with parents and carers. They go above and beyond in helping pupils and families in need. The proprietor and those responsible for governance are an integral part of the life of the school. They ensure that statutory requirements and the independent school standards are met. The school is compliant with schedule 10 of the equality Act 2010.

Safeguarding

The arrangements for safeguarding are effective.

What does the school need to do to improve?

(Information for the school and proprietor)

- The school has not secured teachers' subject-specific pedagogical knowledge in a few subjects, particularly where teachers are new to their roles. As a result, teaching does not routinely enable some pupils to extend or deepen what they know or understand. The school must continue to develop staff expertise to ensure that the intended curriculum is consistently implemented in all subjects.

- A few pupils continue to be reluctant to engage in reading. Some lack suitable skills in segmenting and blending sounds when faced with unfamiliar words. The school should continue to train staff and develop their expertise so that all pupils develop the skills to read with greater fluency and accuracy.

The school has met the independent school standards. These are the requirements set out in the schedule to the Education (Independent School Standards) Regulations 2014.

Inspections are a point-in-time judgement about the quality of a school's education provision.

This was the first routine inspection the school received since the COVID-19 pandemic began. Inspectors discussed the impact of the pandemic with leaders and have taken that into account in their evaluation of the school.

- Inspectors met with the headteacher, the proprietor and chair of governors, members of the proprietor body, local authority representatives, the designated safeguarding lead, teachers, staff and pupils.
- Inspectors carried out deep dives in English, including reading, mathematics, computing and personal, social and health education. Inspectors met with leaders and teachers responsible for all subjects. Inspectors visited a sample of lessons, spoke to some pupils about their learning and considered pupils' work.
- Inspectors considered the curriculum in other subjects.
- To evaluate the effectiveness of safeguarding, inspectors: reviewed the single central record; took account of the views of leaders, staff and pupils; and considered the extent to which the school has created an open and positive culture around safeguarding that puts pupils' interests first. Inspectors considered the views of parents, pupils and staff in responses to Ofsted's online surveys and in discussions.
