Registered provider: Resilience North East Limited

Assurance inspection

Inspected under the social care common inspection framework

Information about this children's home

A private provider owns and manages this home. The home provides care for up to three children with emotional and social difficulties, and learning disabilities.

The manager registered with Ofsted in December 2022.

At the time of this inspection, two children were living in the home. The inspectors spoke to both children.

Inspection date: 21 November 2023

Date of last inspection: 9 August 2023

Judgement at last inspection: requires improvement to be good

Enforcement action since last inspection: none

Information about this inspection

At this inspection, the inspectors evaluated:

- the care of children
- the safety of children
- the effectiveness of leaders and managers.

Inspectors have looked closely at the experiences and progress of children, using the social care common inspection framework. This assurance inspection was carried out under The Care Standards Act 2000 to assess the effectiveness of the service, how it meets the core functions of the service as set out in legislation, and to consider how well it complies with The Children's Homes (England) Regulations 2015 and the 'Guide to the Children's Homes Regulations, including the quality standards'.

Outcome from the inspection

We did not identify any serious or widespread concerns in relation to the care or protection of children during this assurance inspection.

Findings from the inspection

A complaint was sent to Ofsted and the provider was asked to provide information in respect of this. The response received indicated that there may be breaches of regulation relating to the care and protection of children living at the home. This information prompted an additional inspection of the home.

Since the previous inspection in August 2023, one child has moved out of the home. One child is due to move out of the home but there is no clear plan when this will happen. This does not allow children time to emotionally and physically prepare for their move to live in a new adult home.

The children say that they are happy, and the relationships between the staff and the children were seen to be warm and nurturing. One child has started to develop relationships with staff, and another could name the staff who he would speak to about his worries.

The children have developed a positive relationship with each other and have similar interests. One child spoke about baking in the kitchen with staff and demonstrated his favourite activity in the home.

The children say that they feel safe in the home. They know how to make a complaint and staff support children until their grievance is resolved. This makes children feel confident and listened to when raising concerns about their care.

Staff respond to children with care and urgency, including emergency healthcare. However, one child is not receiving consistent physical care and does not have the physical aides to assist him. There is no care plan to inform staff about the child's needs. Additionally, staff have not received training or clear guidance to ensure that the child's physical needs are being properly met. This means that the child and the staff are at risk of injury without specific moving and handling techniques being agreed and adhered to.

Furthermore, staff do not always follow the storage and administration of medication procedures. Staff spoken to were unclear about the medication used by children and the storage requirements. The drug storage cupboard is being routinely left unlocked for ease of access by staff. The names of former children who lived at the home are still listed in the medication cupboard. Furthermore, the recording and auditing of medication is poor, and there was an incorrect stock count on the day of inspection.

Some risk assessments are out of date. The information shared by the staff was not reflected in the risk assessments. Staff do not accurately record the progress made by children. This means that, for one child, their development exceeds the information within their plans, and staff are not working to an agreed plan of care.

The staff feel supported by the registered manager. Concerns are listened to and acted on, which has led to an improved working environment. Induction training takes place and peer-to-peer training promotes an accelerated improvement in practice and recording. This means that new staff feel supported.

The registered manager has good oversight of incidents in the home. There is clear analysis of the events, which is visible for the staff team to learn from. The manager gives clear actions for staff to work to and reaffirms these with emails to the team. This results in clarity for the staff team and consistency for the children.

However, the registered manager's review of the quality of care for children is poor. The review does not address the shortfalls identified during the last inspection. There is no feedback or analysis of the views of children, parents, or professionals. It is not clear from the records what difference the home is making to the progress of the children living in the home.

Furthermore, the manager has failed to always notify Ofsted when there has been a serious incident at the home. This includes not having a system that highlights if a notification has been sent to the regulator. This reduces the ability of Ofsted to have oversight of the home and act on any concerns.
